

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus is described herein for providing for receiving a list of required elements, providing for adding elements from the list to a communication until an end of the list is reached, providing for parsing and modifying the elements according to a natural language rule and limitation set, wherein parsing and modifying includes modifying transitional zones and fusing the elements into a cohesive composite communication, and providing for dispatching the communication to media channels.